

Rob interviewing Gaby Siberil – Atlas of Biodiversity – CCKB

Gaby: It's a project during 2 years at the Brittany camp. I work for the CCKB - communauté de communes du Kreiz-Breizh. The project this name is l'Atlas de la biodiversité, so the Atlas of the Biodiversity. This project is big project to regroup all the knowledge of the nature in our and why are we doing this? Because we need now to protect this environment and for protect we need to know. It's important to catalogue and create a map of the environment next to you, next to the city, next to the landscape because biodiversity here decrease slowly but important to protect it.

Rob: And when you have collected this information what will you do with the information?

Gaby: With this information we can talk with local politician, people take decision in your area to change government or project to change pratique for good things together for protect the biodiversity. So for example to input the issue environment to the ? so the map we decide where we can build or construct or where we cannot. It's to integrate this physical biodiversity to the decisional project.

Rob: So, you're gonna be talking to local politicians?

Gaby: Yeah.

Rob: Who else do you need to talk to?

Gaby: We work with lot of people like farmers because Bretagne centre is area of farmers and it's important now to work with him because farmer have worked on the environment direct everyday.

Rob: So, you're talking to people who will make big decisions

Gaby: Yeah

Rob: People who will maybe change the way they work?

Gaby: Yeah

Rob: You also want to talk to the public.

Gaby: Yeah

Rob: How do you do that? How do you bring your information to the public?

Gaby: We have major some events like we have create groups of information of birds, of river, of plants and we have made events on the 3rd restaurant on the area of CCKB and this evenement make its café biodiversity. And the objective is to discute environment with people who live here. Discute on talk about environment, about the nature about the foxes, the birds, all the things we can see every day.

Rob: Your café biodiversity, you have planned to have one in August?

Gaby: Yeah.

Rob: And after?

Gaby: Yeah in September, October for the last. In August at Saint-Gilles-Pligeaux I think. In September I don't know, and in October in Rostrenen maybe ?

Rob: ? OK. You're working on this on your own? Do you ask for help from other groups?

Gaby: Yeah, make this project together with other structure, work on the biodiversity like ? the LPO.

Rob: League for the Protection of Birds.

Gaby: League for the Protection of Birds, yeah. And 2 association, local association like Cicindele live in Kergrist-Moëlouand AMV, we work with them as well in Glomel. (?) It's important to work with these people because they know the local biodiversity and there is a network local too. It's important to construct together this project. I'm not alone.

Rob: Im glad to hear it. Because it's a big project.

Gaby: Yeah.

Rob: Yeah. So how can people find information about your project?

Gaby: Now on the internet on the website of the CCKB and social network, FaceBook and Instagram.

Rob: You want people to contribute?

Gaby: Yeah. We need you. We need you because we have made website. On this website we can put your observation of the nature.

Rob: For example, on my way today I saw 2 deer that crossed the road, one in Glomel and another one in Plougernevel. I could put that on your site?

Gaby: Yeah. a map and you can zoom on the area where you have seen the observation and put your observation on. You can too put picture of this observation if you have sometimes. Maybe you see a beautiful butterfly you can take a picture of this. We need you because this project is a project for all the people and all people make this project together.

Rob: You mentioned before that you're very interested in the English population.

Gaby: Yeah.

Rob: Why is that?

Gaby: I don't know if I can say in English but I saw that English people are very concerned of the nature. English people love nature and we love English people because English people love nature. So we need you, we need English people because they are knowledge of this nature and next to (?)

Rob: Gaby Siberil of the CCKB at the Biodiversity, thank you very much for explaining all that to us.

Gaby: Thank you.
